

Would you like to become a Member of UNICRI's SIRIO Knowledge Center?

UNICRI is seeking technology partners at the edge of the latest technology development to advance security policies and implement security programmes.

The partners of SIRIO play a crucial role in the center's activities and are encouraged to engage in various capacities. They are:

- 1) Regularly consulted and involved during the preparation of SIRIO reports dedicated to aligning emerging and future security risks with innovative technology solutions.
- 2) Regularly invited to take part in relevant awareness-raising and information-sharing activities for policymakers.
- 3) Regularly invited to take part in workshops alongside national agencies (e.g., law enforcement, customs, intelligence, and prosecution agencies) aimed at identifying specific security needs and exploring how technology can effectively support in addressing these challenges.

If you are a representative from national, regional and international organizations, or if you represent the private sector (including technology providers, think tanks and research institution), or the Academia, and you wish to join the SIRIO network, you can send an email to francesco.marelli@un.org or to marco.musumeci@un.org specifying your areas of expertise and interest to become part of our knowledge center.
